New EU rules for hand luggage

Important information

Schiphol
Amsterdam Airport

What to do with EU rules for liquids and gels in your hand luggage

For all passengers leaving from or transferring on an airport within the EU, there are rules determining what can be taken on board in hand luggage

In your hand luggage, a difference is made between the liquids and gels you brought from home and the liquids and gels you bought in Duty and Tax Free shops. On page 4, you will find more information on which liquids are concerned and how you can transport them.

Only transport liquids and gels in your hand luggage if necessary

There are rules for bringing liquids and gels on board of the aircraft. You will find more information on the next page. It is still possible to bring the usual liquids and gels in your checked luggage. Please pack them carefully to avoid damage.

Your liquid Duty and Tax Free purchases can be brought on board as hand luggage

Purchases from Duty and Tax Free shops at Schiphol are allowed on board of the aircraft. Your purchases will be packed and sealed in a special sealed plastic bag in the tax free shop.

Products brought from home

- Liquids and gels must be stored in containers no larger than 100 ml.
- Each passenger may bring on board a maximum of one plastic re-sealable transparant one-litre bag.
- Medicines and baby food that are demonstrably needed during the trip, are permitted.

Tax Free purchases from Schiphol allowed on the flight

- Liquids and gels must be packaged and sealed by staff at the tax-free store or on board. This seal is valid for a period of one day. You must be able to demonstrate that you purchased the liquids or gels on the day of the flight.
- If you will be transferring to another flight at the next airport, you may not break the seal until you have arrived at your final destination.
- Different rules may apply for specific destinations. For more information, ask one of the Duty & Tax Free shop staff members, or go to www.schiphol.nl.

Important

Have you purchased liquid Duty & Tax Free items in a non-EU country or on board of a non-EU airline? Liquids that have not been screened according to the EU rules, will be confiscated when you transfer at an EU-airport. Confiscation means that you part from your possessions.
